

MUM'S POEM

©Lois Bee 1998

When then was now
And now was then
The world was very different
The moon was pink
The sun was red
Kids never had to go to bed
Or even wash their faces!
Cats were barking at the door
And fish were walking on the floor
Camels didn't have a hump
And monkeys couldn't even jump
Or climb from tree to tree!
Everybody lived in tents
And didn't have to pay their rents
On hands, not feet, they walked about
Difficult without a doubt
They could eat what they like best
And nobody was ever stressed!
Would you have liked to be there when
Then was now and now was then?
